ELLEN TAFFE ZWILICH
PORTRAIT CONCERT

APRIL 8, 2022
JORDAN HALL

A BOSTON CONNECTION CONCERT
presented in partnership with New England Conservatory
Ellen Taaffe Zwilich Portrait Concert

FRIDAY APRIL 8, 2022 8:00
The Life and Times of Malcolm X

The New England premiere of Pulitzer Prize-winner Anthony Davis’s groundbreaking opera. Starring Davóne Tines and featuring Joshua Conyers, Ronnita Miller, Whitney Morrison, and Victor Robertson. Through a combination of operatic writing and swing, scat, modal jazz, and rap, the opera echoes the “sound” of Malcolm’s era and opens a powerful conversation about the history and living legacy of Malcolm X — in Boston and around the world. BMOP’s performance, produced in partnership with Odyssey Opera, brings this seminal opera to The Strand Theatre in Dorchester, just blocks from the neighborhood where Malcolm X lived in his youth.

The first opera in AS TOLD BY, a five-year series of seminal operas by Black composers.

This performance and recording comprise the first work in our series of operas by Black composers, As Told By: History, Race, and Justice on the Opera Stage.

Presented in partnership with Odyssey Opera

Ellen Taaffe Zwilich Portrait Concert

A BOSTON CONNECTION CONCERT
presented in partnership with New England Conservatory

FRIDAY APRIL 8, 2022 8:00
JORDAN HALL AT NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY

Upbeat!

Concerto Elegia for flute and string orchestra
I. Elegy
II. Soliloquy
III. Epilogue
Sarah Brady, flute

Commedia dell’Arte for violin and string orchestra
I. Arlecchino
II. Columbina
III. Il Capitano
IV. Cadenza and Finale
Gabriela Díaz, violin

Symphony No. 5 (Concerto for Orchestra)
I. Prologue
II. Celebration
III. Memorial
IV. Epilogue
Gil Rose, conductor

This concert and Ellen Taaffe Zwilich’s appearance are part of the Malcolm Peyton Composer Artist-in-Residence program at New England Conservatory.
AS EXPECTED OF AN ORCHESTRAL OPENER, Ellen Taaffe Zwilich’s Upbeat! begins with a jolt of orchestral energy, a cascading descent of high winds and strings. This initial gesture is like an inversion of the upward jab of the “Mannheim Rocket,” a fashionable technique of the late 18th century during the Classical era. Here, however, Zwilich’s downward-reaching gesture grounds the orchestra and briefly settles into a syncopated groove of brass and violins, reminiscent of the Americana verve of Aaron Copland, before returning to iterations on the initial gesture that propels the orchestra ever-forward.

If this opening music sounds familiar to historically-inclined ears, the composer has intended it to be so. From the get-go of Upbeat!, Zwilich quotes the famous “Preludio” of J.S. Bach’s Violin Partita No. 3 in E major, BWV 1006. Her title for this program opener is therefore a play on words, referring to both the “lively and joyous ‘upbeat’ character of [Bach’s] music” as well as the gesture’s beginning on a musical upbeat to create rhythmic inertia, inherent in the syncopation of Bach’s bold solo violin writing.

Zwilich’s affinity for the history of violin writing started in the early days of the Miami-born composer’s musical upbringing. Of her nascent days in music, Zwilich explains:

I went to a high school that had a very good band, and we had a couple of choruses and an orchestra [where] we would play a Mozart symphony. The bizarre thing for the time, which I didn’t realize then, was that we had behind-the-screen auditions. Zwilich thrived in this inclusive musical environment, one which progressively emphasized merit and avoided the biases against women in music so common at the time.

After finishing a bachelor’s degree at Florida State University in 1960, Zwilich moved to New York City to play violin with the American Symphony Orchestra under the baton of renowned conductor Leopold Stokowski. In this way, Zwilich is no stranger to the historical tradition of orchestral literature. Yet her musical interests remained broad and omnivorous, traits that have served her well in forging her own unique compositional voice. About the origins of her style, Zwilich states:
It's all kind of a mixed bag. I feel like I have a voice, but I don't have a regular style [and] I wouldn't want to write like somebody else. My background includes all kinds of things. I played under Stokowski for seven years and had a strong background in classical tradition. In college I played jazz and bebop, and that comes out in my music. I'm not going to sit down and say, 'I'll write something jazzy.' If it comes out that way, I'll take it.

After her formative years with the American Symphony Orchestra, Zwilich continued her musical studies at Juilliard, where she became the first woman to receive a doctorate in composition in 1973. Against the odds, she continued to make a name for herself as a pioneer in the field and, within a decade, became the first woman composer to be awarded the Pulitzer Prize in music in 1983 for her Symphony No. 1. Zwilich's genuine popularity with audiences rests on her concise and accessible brand of modernism, which employs a passionately obsessive development of motivic materials that generate the wholesale melodic, harmonic, and structural character of her work.

Upbeat was commissioned and premiered in September of 1999 by both the National Symphony Orchestra and the Westchester Symphony Orchestra with performances conducted by Anthony Aibel. The work progresses organically from its Bach-quoting origins, never losing steam and putting the string section through a rigorous workout of demanding tutti passages. Despite its musical challenges, Upbeat remains lighthearted, a jovial romp that both meets and thwarts expectations, as evident in Zwilich's humanistic, path-less-traveled writing process:

I sometimes say to young composers, 'Life is not like a GPS where you go three miles and make a right. It's full of all these accidental things. It's more like driving around in a country and stopping there and staying a few days.' That's how I feel about writing. I don't want to have a road map of what I'm going to do. I want to feel it and have it just come out. We don't know what music is, but for me, it's the entire human, the brains, the heart, the soul, the guts. It should make you want to sing and dance. It's sorrow and joy and everything we have as humans.

CONCERTO ELEGIA (2015)

Ellen Taaffe Zwilich is an old hand at writing concertos and concertante works, ones where solo instruments are featured amongst larger instrumental forces. With an expansive list ranging from the mid-1980s until the present day, tonight’s program features three such works: one for flute and string orchestra, another for violin and string orchestra, and lastly a “concerto for orchestra.”

The first of these works on tonight’s program is Concerto Elegia, which was composed in memory of Zwilich’s late husband Erik LaMont. Commissioned by a consortium of 11 orchestras and premiered by flutist Trudy Kane at the University of Miami’s Frost School of Music in 2015, the musical narrative of Concerto Elegia runs a gamut of emotions as if grappling with the stages of grief: anger, bargaining, depression, and acceptance. Cast in three movements, the flute soloist grapples with grief in solitude, eventually becoming more conversant with the supporting strings in order to come to terms with sadness in the face of loss.

This is not the first time that Zwilich’s music has underlined this very human story of struggling with loss by using an intentional shifting between musical styles. Although Zwilich’s earlier works in the 1970s had more readily embraced a brazen atonality, this would be replaced in the 1980s with a more neoromantic postmodernism and blending of styles. Zwilich’s music had first garnered public attention in 1975 when the iconoclast Pierre Boulez conducted her Symposium at Juilliard. But shortly thereafter, her husband Joseph Zwilich (violinist for the Metropolitan Opera) passed away in 1979. In the wake of this loss, Zwilich refocused her compositional voice to one “communicating more directly with performers and listeners,” softening the more harshly angular and jagged dissonances of mid-century modernism.

Concerto Elegia, written nearly four decades later, demonstrates Zwilich’s continuation of using different styles, now used to tell a more explicit story of overcoming painful loss. This concerto for flute and string orchestra begins more like Zwilich’s earlier work with its ambiguous harmonies that shift in and out of tonality. However, the work evolves slowly across its three movements, ranging from a floating sadness — where the flute’s melancholic and meandering melodies soar atop hauntingly dark string textures — to a more lively and conversant interplay between soloist and ensemble, using jazz-like passages and rhythms.

The first movement, “Elegy,” begins with a serpentine and searching solo by the flute that goes beyond mourning, verging into a kind of longing that seems to yearn for something beyond reach. Surely, there are ecstatic moments when the flute cries out in its upper registers as if in pain; but there are also depressive lows as the soloist performs long passages in the wind instrument’s lower register, expressing a deep sorrow for an almost unbearable loss as if unable to go on. However, the glassy support of molto legato strings is occasionally disrupted by the soft thrum of plucking pizzicato, one that never quite seems to shake the flute from an inward expression. These “waking moments” from the strings are like a rapping at the door, attempting to signal the flute to return to a reality, one that the flute perhaps wishes to ignore because it is yet to offer any solace for the pain.

“Soliloquy,” the second movement, is a more regularly rhythmic affair. Scored in three beats per measure, the music often strains against the cage of its time signature, stretching across the bar lines in groups of four beats. In this way, the floating sensation of the first movement still survives. Yet, something has changed. The strings begin in long tones in a senza vibrazione, but — like with the soft plucking of pizzicato in the first movement — they more readily take on a regular pulse by repeating chords. The flute still winds through a solitary melody but is goaded into a more conversational and collaborative music, letting loose momentary moments of jazzy exuberance. Eventually, the flute loses more and more of its isolation as it joins the strings, which take on warmer harmonies.

In the final movement, titled “Epilogue,” the strings continue to melt the solitude of the soloist by offering a soft palette of harmony. After staggering their bowing to create a continuous harmonic wall, the flute finally acquiesces and climbs this “wall of sound” with a new-found scalar agility. Pizzicato from the strings is once again employed by Zwilich to provoke the soloist, and an upbeat tempo is achieved, complete with jazzy riffs aplenty and a bebop-inflected chromaticism. While the pain of loss cannot be said to be completely gone, since the flute still continues to act against the string orchestra in some respects, the soloist’s playing has become more functional and integrated into the ensemble. The strings now feel less like a shroud to wrap up the soloist’s solitude, as the flute writing becomes more dance-like. The flute ends repeating low-register notes, signaling a resolution that verges on resignation and exhaustion, but one that also melts with tenderness and acceptance.

COMMEDIA DELL’ARTE (2012)

Ellen Taaffe Zwilich’s Commmedia dell’Arte is a much different kind of casting for soloist and ensemble than Concerto Elegia. Here, we find the composer at her most playful, returning to writing for her beloved violin. Zwilich conceived of this piece as a bravura concerto, one that shows off the bold virtuosic talent of the soloist. So it is also fitting that the composer took inspiration from the Italian theatrical tradition from which the work takes its name. Popular throughout Europe between the 16th and 18th centuries, commedia dell’arte employs archetypal characters who represent members of society but in a more exaggerated and “bigger than life” way—in essence, they are caricatures intended for the theatricality of the stage. Zwilich titles the first three movements of the work after some of these traditional characters.

“Arlecchino” appears in the first movement. Perhaps better known as Harlequin to some, Arlecchino is “basically an acrobat,” a member of the Zanni, a servant class originating from the countryside. He is a clown of sorts, paradoxically both a dimwitted fool and an intelligent trickster: fun-loving, child-like, and also amorous. His role in the commedia tradition is often to create chaos, and Zwilich leans into this tradition by attributing an off-kilter Bartokian writing to the strings. The violin soloist’s part is marked scherzando, which means playful and joking, and Zwilich’s virtuosic writing calls for left-hand pizzicato, a technique where the player uses their left hand—which is usually reserved for stopping the string, while the right-hand’s bow or fingers activate the strings—to pluck a string, allowing the right-hand to continue to use the bow. The music is fast, clever, and deeply rhythmic, provoked by a violin in the ensemble armed with a slapstick, a percussion instrument who’s clapping emphasizes the soloist’s acrobatic “squat-and-jump” clowning-around.

Another auxiliary instrument is employed in the second movement, entitled “Colombina.” This time, a tambourine is played by a cellist. Colombina is a much different stock character in the commedia dell’arte tradition. Where Arlecchino was a puckish rogue, Colombina is a “little dove,” sensual yet sensible, often the object of Arlecchino’s desires. In fact, the tambourine she carries was often used to ward off the amorous attentions of the trickster-clown. Zwilich appropriately marks the solo violinist’s music in this movement with words like “sweet, expressive,” “a little sultry,” “bird-like,” and “whimsical.” The soloist starts off coy and poised before pushing the music into more extroverted passions. The accompanying strings are marked con sordino (with mute), providing a husky tone for Colombina’s dance-like music. The strings also strum whole chords during pizzicato passages, providing an almost flamenco-like tone, which works well with the shimmering tambourine.

The third movement, and the last of Zwilich’s commedia characters, is “Capitano.” An accompanying violinist begins the movement with a mock miliatristic roll of a toy drum, setting the stage for bellicose bravura and buffoonery. Il Capitano (the captain) is traditionally a cartoon caricature of a military man: bold and swaggering, yet ultimately cowardly. The solo violinist begins in the lower register, marked “ponderous.” The writing is largely percussive and often calls for double-stops (where two pitches are played at once) or even triple-to-quadruple stops.

In the final movement, titled “Cadenza and Finale,” the characters are imagined to meet and interact. Rather than be too prescriptive by providing a specific narrative here, Zwilich intends for the listener to decide who is who and what might be happening in this closing music. The movement opens with the atmospheric jangling of pipe bells, played by several members of the accompanying string section. Quickly, the solo violinist takes over to play a long cadenza that combines the gestures of the previous three movements. The “squat-and-jump” registral jumps of Arlecchino are blended seamlessly with the delicately sultry melodic and faux-belligerent rhythmic gestures of Colombina and Capitano to theatrical effect.

SYMPHONY NO. 5 (CONCERTO FOR ORCHESTRA) (2008)

Commissioned by the Juilliard School in honor of Bruce Kovner and Suzie Kovner with support of the Trust of Francis Goelet, Zwilich’s Symphony No. 5 work was premiered in October of 2008 at Carnegie Hall by the Juilliard Orchestra under the baton of James Conlon. Zwilich divides the work into a traditional four movements. Subtitled “Concerto for Orchestra,” Zwilich explains that “The entire work treats the orchestra like a huge chamber ensemble, in which each player or section can be a brilliant soloist one moment and a sensitive partner the next.”

This intentional fluidity of genre and instrumental interaction demonstrates Zwilich’s flair for orchestration. She also notes that two personal motives drove her while writing this work: (1) her relationship to Juilliard, the place where she first honed her composition voice and for whose orchestra she takes great pleasure in writing because of their dedication to the medium, and (2) her respect for conductor James Conlon’s “dedication to the music of composers who were politically silenced.”

“Prologue,” the first movement, begins without beating around the bush: a thickly scored music thrusts quickly upwards suddenly out of nowhere, cresting like a great wave into a crashing forte. A more tender theme emerges from the chaos between flute and horn, but this peacefulness is quickly dashed over and over again by another iteration of the “cresting wave” gesture. The music continues to be restless, shifting and turning from moment to moment to give every instrument their time in the spotlight. There is an ever-present sense of urban danger to the proceedings, often exacerbated by percussive explosions, usually followed by fleeting moments of gentleness and fragility.

This opening movement serves to introduce the main thematic material used across the different movements, about which Zwilich has said, “Like most of my large-scale works, the long line of the work grows from material in the opening movement, sometimes in clearly recognizable motives and variations, but most frequently in more subtle evolutions.” Therefore, the listening experience can be a bit of a hunt to find these themes, which seem hidden by the composer, only to be revealed again in surprising new ways.

The second movement, “Celebration,” is full of a “vibrant energy” in celebration of the dedicated artistry of the Juilliard Symphony. Like the first movement, Zwilich wastes no time as the writing plunges the instruments into a fast and wild ecstatic frenzy of rising and falling waves of sound. Surprising segues from the different orchestral sections, especially the brass and percussion, add extra excitement. One might imagine the music to be the soundtrack to a cinematic car chase or action sequence.

“Memorial,” the third movement, provides a moment of needed respite. This movement is dedicated “in remembrance of composers whose voices were silenced by tyranny,” which only enhances its gravity. The same thematic material from the first two movements is still present, but the atmosphere is less dense and much more sweeping in scope. There is still a hint of violence, an unsteady churning of instrumental forces where one is never quite sure what to expect next. The “Epilogue” closes the symphony, opening with the ghostly glances of wire brushes on the skins of timpani drums amidst the low thrum of cello and bass. Percussion is even more on display here than in previous movements, giving the finale a more jazzy edge.

In general, Zwilich’s Symphony No. 5 relies heavily on contrasts to keep the ear’s attention while the different permutations of her themes are being passed around the orchestral instruments. There is a kind of hot-cold juxtaposition here as well, between music of intense highs and lows. Indeed, when talking about composing for orchestra in interviews, Zwilich has noted how the writing is done in solitude, which is a rather inward and insular journey. However, once rehearsals begin, the composer is thrust into a much more social situation, engaging with the conductor and many musicians to hone the music previously only heard in her imagination. Zwilich has likened this juxtaposition to that of sauna cultures, where exposure to extreme hot temperatures is often followed by plunging one’s self into frigidly cold waters. Her fifth symphony works much the same by guiding the listener through a series of hot and cold climates over and over again, often in quick succession. The effect can be dazzling and prismatic, threatening to lose those who are not ready for the ride. Though Zwilich’s themes are always audibly present, the material is never quite the same throughout, flowing much like a river whose rapids rage at one point only to slow and ebb at another, providing excitement about what might lie just beyond the next bend.

Clifton Ingram is a composer, performer (Rested Field, guitars/electronics), and writer interested in the fault lines between contemporary and historical traditions. He holds degrees in music (composition) and classics from Skidmore College and The Boston Conservatory.

GUEST ARTISTS

Called “enchanting” by the Boston Globe, flutist Sarah Brady is sought after across the country as a soloist, chamber musician, and master teacher. An avid promoter of new music she has premiered and recorded new music from many of today’s top composers. Recent projects have included premieres of new solo flute and electronic music from Elena Ruehr, Andy Vores, Marti Epstein, Reinaldo Moya, John Mallia, and Curtis Hughes, as well as music for flute and strings from Marcos Balter, Nicholas Vines and Johnathan Bailey Holland. Her solo and chamber work, as well as over 50 orchestral recordings can be heard on the Albany, Naxos, Oxingale, Cantalope and BMOP/Sound music labels. As a leading interpreter of contemporary music, she was invited to read and record new music commissioned by Yo Yo Ma for his Silk Road Project at Tanglewood.

Sarah lives in Boston and performs regularly as principal flute with the Boston Modern Orchestra Project and Odyssey Opera. She can also be heard performing with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Boston Pops, Boston Ballet, Portland Symphony Orchestra, and Boston Lyric Opera. As a chamber musician she has collaborated with the Fromm Players at Harvard, the Firebird Ensemble, the Radius Ensemble, Boston Musica Viva, The Talea Ensemble, Callithumpian Consort, Sound Icon, and NotaRiotous. She is a member of the Michigan-based new music ensemble Brave New Works, a group that is dedicated to promoting new music throughout the US and Canada by premiering new music and educating young composers through a college residency program. The ensemble has been in residence at Cornell, Bowling Green University, the University of Michigan, Tufts University, University of Puget Sound, Williams, Western Washington University, and Boston Conservatory at Berklee.

In competition she was awarded second place in the National Flute Association 2006 Young Artist Competition, where she also won an award for the best performance of the newly commissioned work by Paul Drescher. She was a semi-finalist in the Myrna Brown Competition Flute Competition, Heida Herman Woodwind Competition, Eastern Connecticut Young Artist Competition, and twice received second place in Boston’s prestigious Pappoutsakis Flute Competition. As a soloist Sarah enjoyed a sold out debut at Carnegie Hall’s Zankel Hall with pianist Oxana Yablonskaya. Currently, Sarah is the Director of the Contemporary Classical Music Department as well as Associate Professor of Flute at the Boston Conservatory at Berklee.
Georgia native GABRIELA DÍAZ began her musical training at the age of five, studying piano with her mother, and the next year, violin with her father. As a childhood cancer survivor, Gabriela is committed to supporting cancer research and treatment in her capacity as a musician. In 2004, Gabriela was a recipient of a grant from the Albert Schweitzer Foundation, an award that enabled Gabriela to create and direct the Boston Hope Ensemble. This program is now part of Winsor Music. A firm believer in the healing properties of music, Gabriela and her colleagues have performed in cancer units in Boston hospitals and presented benefit concerts for cancer research organizations in numerous venues throughout the United States.

A fierce champion of contemporary music, Gabriela has been fortunate to work closely with many significant composers on their own compositions, namely Pierre Boulez, Magnus Lindberg, Frederic Rzewski, Alvin Lucier, Unsuk Chin, John Zorn, Joan Tower, Roger Reynolds, Chaya Czernowin, Steve Reich, Tania León, Brian Ferneyhough, and Helmut Lachenmann. Gabriela is a member of several Boston-area contemporary music groups, including Sound Icon, Ludovico Ensemble, Dinosaur Annex, Boston Musica Viva, and Callithumpian Consort. She plays regularly with Winsor Music, Castle of our Skins, Radius Ensemble, and Emmanuel Music and frequently collaborates with Alarm Will Sound, the International Contemporary Ensemble (ICEensemble), and A Far Cry. In 2012 Gabriela joined the violin faculty of Wellesley College. Gabriela is co-artistic director of the much beloved Boston-based chamber music and outreach organization Winsor Music.

ARTISTIC DIRECTOR

GIL ROSE is a musician helping to shape the future of classical music. Acknowledged for his “sense of style and sophistication” by Opera News, noted as “an amazingly versatile conductor” by The Boston Globe, and praised for conducting with “admiral command” by The New York Times, over the past two decades Mr. Rose has built a reputation as one of the country’s most inventive and versatile conductors. His dynamic performances on both the symphonic and operatic stages as well as over 80 recordings have garnered international critical praise. In 1996, Mr. Rose founded the Boston Modern Orchestra Project (BMOP), the foremost professional orchestra dedicated exclusively to performing and recording symphonic music of the twentieth and twenty-first centuries. Under his leadership, BMOP has won fourteen ASCAP awards for adventurous programming and was selected as Musical America’s 2016 Ensemble of the Year, the first symphony orchestra to receive this distinction. Mr. Rose serves as the executive producer of the BMOP/sound recording label. His extensive discography includes world première recordings of music by John Cage, Lukas Foss, Chen Yi, Anthony Davis, Lisa Bielawa, Steven Mackey, Eric Nathan, and many others on such labels as Albany, Arsis, Chandos, ECM, Naxos, New World, and BMOP/sound.

In September 2013, he introduced a new company to the Boston opera scene, Odyssey Opera, dedicated to eclectic and underperformed operatic repertoire. Since the company’s inaugural performance of Wagner’s Rienzi, which took the Boston scene by storm, Odyssey Opera has continued to receive universal acclaim for its annual festivals with compelling themes and unique programs, presenting fully staged operatic works and concert performances of overlooked grand opera masterpieces. In its first five years, Mr. Rose has brought 22 operas to Boston, and introduced the city to some important new artists. In 2016 Mr. Rose founded Odyssey Opera’s in-house recording label with its first release, Pietro Mascagni’s Zanetto. A double disc of one act operas by notable American composer Dominick Argento, and the world première recording of Mario Castelnuovo-Tedesco’s The Importance of Being Earnest followed. In the past year, Odyssey has released première recordings of Charles Gounod’s La Reine de Saba and Saint-Saëns’s Henry VIII.

Formerly, Mr. Rose led Opera Boston as its Music Director starting in 2003, and in 2010 was appointed the company’s first Artistic Director. He led Opera Boston in several American and New England premières including Shostakovich’s The Nose, Weber’s Der Freischütz, and Hindemith’s Cardillac. In 2009, Mr. Rose led the world première of Zhou Long’s Madame White Snake, which won the Pulitzer Prize for Music in 2011. Mr. Rose also served as the artistic director of Opera Unlimited, a contemporary opera festival associated with Opera Boston. With Opera Unlimited, he led the world première of Elena Ruehr’s Toussaint Before the Spirits and the New England première of Thomas Adès’s Powder Her Face, as well as the revival of John Harbison’s Full Moon in March, and the North American première of Peter Eötvös’s Angels in America.

Mr. Rose maintains a busy schedule as a guest conductor on both the opera and symphonic platforms. He made his Tanglewood debut in 2002 and in 2003 he debuted... with the Netherlands Radio Symphony at the Holland Festival. He has led the American Composers Orchestra, Warsaw Philharmonic, National Symphony Orchestra of the Ukraine, Cleveland Chamber Symphony, Orchestra della Svizzera Italiana, and National Orchestra of Porto. In 2015, he made his Japanese debut substituting for Seiji Ozawa at the Matsumoto Festival conducting Berlioz’s Béatrice et Bénédict, and in March 2016 made his debut with New York City Opera at the Appel Room at Jazz at Lincoln Center. He has since returned to City Opera in 2017 (as Conductor and Director) and 2018 conducting a double bill of Rameau & Donizetti’s Pigmalione. In 2019, he made his debut conducting the Juilliard Symphony in works of Ligeti and Tippett.

As an educator, he has served on the faculty of Tufts University and Northeastern University as well as worked with students at a wide range of colleges such as Harvard, MIT, New England Conservatory, Carnegie Mellon University and the University of California at San Diego amongst others.

In 2007, Mr. Rose was awarded Columbia University’s prestigious Ditson Award as well as an ASCAP Concert Music Award for his exemplary commitment to new American music. He is a five-time Grammy Award nominee and won Best Opera Recording in 2020 for Tobias Picker’s Fantastic Mr. Fox.

BMOP/sound. the label of the acclaimed Boston Modern Orchestra Project, explores the evolution of the music formerly known as classical. Its eclectic catalog offers both rediscovered classics of the 20th century and the music of today’s most influential and innovative composers. BMOP/sound gives adventurous listeners a singular opportunity to explore the music that is defining this generation and the next.

Available for purchase at bmop.org and in the lobby during intermission at tonight’s performance. Preview and download tracks through all major online retailers.

BMOP/sound recordings offer superior sound quality, impeccable post-production, and distinguished packaging. In addition to receiving eight Grammy Award nominations and winning for Best Opera Recording in 2020, BMOP/sound recordings have appeared on the year-end “Best of” lists of the New York Times, Time Out New York, the Boston Globe, American Record Guide, National Public Radio, NewMusicBox, Sequenza21, and Downbeat magazine.

Subscriptions available
Your subscription ensures that you will receive all of BMOP/sound’s preeminent recordings as soon as they are made available. Order now and receive:

- 12-CD subscription for $14 per CD (save 30%)
- Each new CD before official release date
- Free shipping (for international subscribers add $2/CD)
- BMOP/sound e-news

To order, call 781.324.0396 or email bmopsound@bmop.org.
Order forms are also available at the CD table in the lobby.
New from BMOP/sound

[1080]
WALTER PISTON CONCERTO FOR ORCHESTRA
“BMOP is in top form, giving performances that are authoritative, powerful, clear, and transparent.” FANFARE

[1081]
ARNOLD ROSNER THE CHRONICLE OF NINE
Megan Pachecano soprano Eric Carey tenor
James Demler baritone William Hite tenor
David Salsbery Fry bass Rebecca Krouner contralto
Aaron Engebreth baritone Stephanie Kacoyanis contralto
Krista River mezzo-soprano Gene Stenger tenor

[1082]
TOD MACHOVER DEATH AND THE POWERS
James Maddalena baritone Patricia Risley mezzo-soprano
Joëlle Harvey soprano Hal Cazalet tenor

[1083]
JOHN HARBISON DIOTIMA
Dawn Upshaw soprano
“Gil Rose and the Boston Modern Orchestra Project bring greater vitality to [Symphony No. 6].” GRAMOPHONE

[1084]
MATTHEW AUCOIN ORPHIC MOMENTS
Anthony Roth Costanzo counter-tenor
Conor Hanick piano Keir GoGwilt violin

[1085]
GAIL KUBIK SYMPHONY CONCERTANTE
“Persuasively performed. Entertaining throughout!” THE WHOLE NOTE

[1086]
ROGER REYNOLDS VIOLIN WORKS
Gabriela Díaz violin

UPCOMING RELEASES

[1087]
JOHN CORIGLIANO TO MUSIC

[1088]
AVNER DORMAN SIKLON

[1089]
CARLOS SURINACH THE OWL AND THE PUSSYCAT

FULL CATALOG ON DISPLAY IN LOBBY
Give to BMOP and BMOP/sound

Ticket revenue accounts for a fraction of the expense of BMOP concerts, BMOP/sound CDs, and outreach programs. The sum of many gifts of all sizes insure BMOP’s future. With your support, we will advocate for composers of all ages, bring together audiences, young and old, distribute BMOP/sound recordings to international locations, and know that today’s landmark orchestral works will remain a part of our collective memory.

Benefits of giving include

- Complimentary BMOP/sound CDs
- Recognition in BMOP programs and publications
- Invitations to receptions with composers and guest artists
- The knowledge that you are helping to sustain the present and future of orchestral music

You may contribute in the following ways:

CALL 781.324.0396 to speak to a BMOP staff member.

VISIT www.bmop.org to give through BMOP’s secure online donation form.

SCAN the QR code at right to donate via our secure online form.

MAIL your donation to BMOP, 376 Washington Street, Malden, MA 02148.

GIVE your contribution to a BMOP staff member tonight!

For more information, please contact Sissie Siu Cohen, General Manager, at 781.324.0396 or ssiu@bmop.org.

---

DONORS

We gratefully acknowledge the following individuals, corporations, and foundations whose generous support has made our concerts and recordings possible. (Gifts acknowledged below were received between July 2020 and January 2022.)

FOUNDATIONS, CORPORATIONS, AND INSTITUTIONS

- Anonymous
- Aaron Copland Fund for Music
- The Howard and Katherine Aibel Foundation
- The Alice Ditson Fund at Columbia University
- The Amphion Foundation
- Catherine and Paul Buttenwieser Foundation
- The Ellis L. Phillips Foundation
- The Nancy Foss Heath and Richard B. Heath Educational, Cultural and Environmental Foundation
- The Jebediah Foundation
- Massachusetts Cultural Council
- National Endowment for the Arts
- The Wise Family Charitable Foundation
- Ortloff Organ Company
- Ruane & Company
- BMOP was supported by New Music USA’s New Music Organizational Development Fund

QUARTER CENTURY CIRCLE

- Christopher Avery
- James Barnett and Carolyn Haynes
- Elizabeth S. Boveroux
- Stephanie Boye
- David Lloyd Brown
- Jason and Sara Sedgwick Brown
- The Gregory E. Bulger Foundation
- H. Paris Burstyn
- Cape Harbor Realty
- The Gay & Lesbian Review
- Rayford Law
- Newton Wellesley Family Pediatrics
- Saltmarsh Insurance Company
- David Scudder
- Anne-Marie Soulliere and Lindsey C.Y. Kiang
Benefactors ($10,000 and above)
- Anonymous
- Christopher Avery
- Elizabeth S. Boveroux
- David Lloyd Brown
- Sam and Deborah Bruskin
- H. Paris Burstyn
- Brad Meyer
- Patricia O'Connor
- Joanne Sattley
- David and Marie Louise Scudder
- Campbell Steward

Guarantors ($5,000—$9,999)
- In memory of Larry Philips
- Stephanie Boye
- Lawrence Devito
- John and Rosemary Harbison
- James Barnett and Carolyn Haynes
- Walter Howell and Jennifer Layzer
- Gil Rose
- Ronald Sampson
- Howard Stokar

Leaders ($2,500—$4,999)
- Katherine Cain
- Harriett Eckstein
- Rayford Law
- Walter Howell and Jennifer Layzer
- Pyra Shapero

Patrons ($1,000—$2,499)
- Nathalie Apchin
- H. Paris Burstyn
- Marjorie B. Cohn and Martin Cohn
- Eran and Yukiko Egozy
- Dorothea Endicott
- Joel Gordon
- Richard Greene
- Bob and Sue McNutt
- Peter D. Parker and Susan Clare
- David Rakowski and Beth Wiemann
- Julie Rohwein and Jonathan Aibbel
- Anne-Marie Soulliere and Lindsey C.Y. Kiang

Partnering Members ($500—$999)
- Kate and Gordon Baty
- Colleen Brannen
- Joyce Carnes
- Pravin Chaturvedi
- Timothy Davis
- Steven Ledbetter
- Robert J. Henry
- John Loder
- Russ Lopez and Andrew Sherman
- Robert and Jane Morse
- Patrick O'Shea
- Paul Tomkavage
- Anu Yadav

Sponsoring Members ($250—$499)
- Anonymous (2)
- Birgit and Charles Blyth
- Hans and Mary Lynn Bohn
- Gail Davidson and Tom Gidwitz
- John Doherty
- David and Eileen Felder
- Randal Guendel
- Ronald Haroutunian
- Katherine Kayanian
- David A. Klaus
- Russell Lopez
- Arthur Mattuck
- Marvin and Elsa Miller
- Eric Moe
- Andrea Pokladowski
- Bernie and Sue Pucker
- Larry Rosenberg
- Henry Schibl
- Vineet and Hillary Shende
- George Stalker
- Hans Tutschku
- Tom Walmsley
- Peter Wender
- Steven Wolfe

Supporting Members ($100—$249)
- Larry Banks
- John C. Berg
- Libby Blank
- Sarah Boardman
- Eric Buehrens
- Renata E. Cathou
- Mary Chamberlain
- Eric Chasalow and Barbara Cassidy
- Frederick Cowan & Dr. Richard Gardner
- Chen Yi and Zhou Long
- Donald Crockett
- Anthony D'Amico
- Jeffrey Duryea
- Nicole Faulkner
- John and Ruth Fitzsimmons
- Rachel Freed
- Chuck Furlong
- Winifred Gray
- Petie Hilsinger
- Pauline Ho Bynum
- James Kaddaras
- Jim Kiely
- John and Rita Kubert
- Joe Law
- Brian Leahy
- Bruce and Linda Leibig

Friends ($99 and below)
- Anonymous (2)
- Nancy, Meyer, and Samuel Brown
- Richard and Ruth Colwell
- Bruce and Susan Creditor
- Alexei Doohovskoy
- Norman Feit
- Alice Adler and Edw.S. Ginsberg
- Robert J. Henry
- Karl Koehler
- Paul Lehrman
- Harold Lichtin
- Carol Lubkowskki
- Laird Melamed

In Kind
- John Kramer
- New England Conservatory

Funding Members ($250 and above)
- Stephen Long
- Joel Mayer
- Matthew McIrvin
- Lucy Murray
- Kern Ormond
- Joseph Pennachio
- Ronald Perera
- Dimitar Petkov
- Harold I. Pratt
- Djim Reynolds
- Sheila Rizzo
- Victor Rosenbaum
- Mathew Rosenblum
- Curry Sawyer
- Raymond Schmidt
- Robert Shapiro
- Kay and Jack Shelemy
- Mary Sherman
- Diane Sokal and Randolph Meiklejohn
- Joel Stein
- Peter Sulski
- Chinary Ung
- Dan Vanhassel
- Scott Wheeler
- Wendy Woodfield
- Beverly Woodward and Paul Monsky

IN KIND
- John Kramer
- New England Conservatory

Funding Members ($250 and above)
- Stephen Long
- Joel Mayer
- Matthew McIrvin
- Lucy Murray
- Kern Ormond
- Joseph Pennachio
- Ronald Perera
- Dimitar Petkov
- Harold I. Pratt
- Djim Reynolds
- Sheila Rizzo
- Victor Rosenbaum
- Mathew Rosenblum
- Curry Sawyer
- Raymond Schmidt
- Robert Shapiro
- Kay and Jack Shelemy
- Mary Sherman
- Diane Sokal and Randolph Meiklejohn
- Joel Stein
- Peter Sulski
- Chinary Ung
- Dan Vanhassel
- Scott Wheeler
- Wendy Woodfield
- Beverly Woodward and Paul Monsky
BMOP BOARDS AND STAFF

BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Chris Avery
Co-founder, Boston Smoked Fish Co.

James Barnett
Retired software architect

Elizabeth S. Boveroux,
Vice President (retired), Eaton Vance Management

David Lloyd Brown
Attorney, McCarter & English, LLP

H. Paris Burstyn
Principal, Rayford W Law Architecture & Planning

Harriett Eckstein
Attorney, Davis, Malm, & D’Agostine, PC

Walter Howell
Composer and Theorist, Tufts University

Rayford Law
Composer, MIT

Sam Mawn-Mahla
Composer and Flutist, New England Conservatory

Gil Rose, President
Composer and Director, Experimental Media Facility, MIT

Mark DeVoto
Composer and Theorist, Tufts University

Alan Fletcher
Composer and Director, Fine Cut Productions

Charles Fussell
Composer, Harvard University

John Harbison
Composer, MIT

John Heiss
Composer and Director, Experimental Media Facility, MIT

Joseph Horowitz
Composer, MIT

John Kramer
Composer and Flutist, New England Conservatory

Steven Ledbetter
Composer and Director, Experimental Media Facility, MIT

Martin Ostrow
Producer/Director, Fine Cut Productions

Bernard Rands
Composer, Harvard University

Kay Kaufman Shelemay
Ethnomusicologist, Harvard University

Lucy Shelton
Soprano

STAFF

Gil Rose
Artistic Director

Bailey Hoar Jensen
Director of Institutional Advancement

Sissie Siu Cohen
General Manager

Stefanie Lubkowski
Development and Publications Manager

April Thibeault
Publicist

Chuck Furlong
Label Manager

eeWee Productions, LLC
Social Media Management

Saltmarsh Insurance Agency

751 Main Street, Winchester, MA
781-729-4615 | www.saltmarshinsurance.com

When it comes to insurance expertise, there’s simply no substitute for knowledge, experience, and service. For over 50 years, our customer first philosophy has driven us to provide the very best solution, based on your particular circumstances. More importantly, please know that our thoughts are with all of you, as we navigate our way through this pandemic.

and the health, safety, and well-being of our employees, customers, and the community are of the utmost importance to us. We at Saltmarsh Insurance are dedicated to all of you, and we are here for you, especially during these most challenging times. Please take care of yourself and one another, and contact us if we can be of service.

Voted Reader’s Choice for 16 years!!

Home  Life  Auto  Commercial
Refold, Rebuild, REVUELTA!
Sunday, May 1, 2022  3:00-4:30 PM
Boston University Tsai Performance Center

Yehudi Wyner  Richard Pittman...Come Back!, World Premiere, NEP Commission
Sofía Rocha  Replier, 2020 Call for Scores Winner, World Premiere
Chen Yi  Spring in Dresden, Danielle Maddon, Violin
Silvestre Revueltas  La noche de los Mayas (suite)

Conducted by Tianhui Ng
NEP Music Director Finalist

TICKETS ON SALE
NEPHILHARMONIC.ORG
Newton-Wellesley Family Pediatrics

is proud to honor longtime BMOP Board Chair Larry Phillips and support BMOP’s 25th anniversary season.

Charles S. Brown, M.D.
Julia N. Brown, M.D.
Cally Gwon, M.D.
Steven Greer, M.D.
Margaret Fallon, M.D.
Charles D. Brown, Ph.D.
Mary Levenstein, MS., CPNP
Michelle Marini, MS., CPNP
THE BOSTON MODERN ORCHESTRA PROJECT

is the premier orchestra in the United States dedicated exclusively to commissioning, performing, and recording music of the twentieth and twenty-first centuries. A unique institution of crucial artistic importance to today’s musical world, the Boston Modern Orchestra Project (BMOP) exists to disseminate exceptional orchestral music of the present and recent past via performances and recordings of the highest caliber. Hailed as “one of the most artistically valuable [orchestras] in the country for its support of music either new or so woefully neglected that it might as well be” by The New York Times, BMOP was the recipient of Musical America’s 2016 Ensemble of the Year award, the first symphony orchestra in the organization’s history to receive this distinction.

Founded by Artistic Director Gil Rose in 1996, BMOP has championed composers whose careers span nine decades. Each season, Rose brings BMOP’s award-winning orchestra, renowned soloists, and influential composers to the stage of Boston’s premier venues in a series that offers the most diverse orchestral programming in the city. The musicians of BMOP are consistently lauded for the energy, imagination, and passion with which they infuse the music of the present era. BMOP was selected as Musical America’s 2016 Ensemble of the Year, the first symphony orchestra to receive this distinction. In 2021, Gramophone magazine bestowed BMOP with a Special Achievement Award in recognition of their service to American music.

BMOP’s distinguished and adventurous track record includes premieres and recordings of monumental and provocative new works such as John Harbison’s ballet Ulysses, Charles Wuorinen’s Haroun and the Sea of Stories, and Lei Liang’s A Thousand Mountains, A Million Streams. A perennial winner of the ASCAP Award for Adventurous Programming, the orchestra has been featured at festivals including Opera Unlimited, the Ditson Festival of Contemporary Music with the ICA/Boston, Tanglewood, the Boston Cyberarts Festival, the Festival of New American Music (Sacramento, CA), Music on the Edge (Pittsburgh, PA), and the MATA Festival in New York. BMOP has actively pursued a role in music education through composer residencies, and collaborations with colleges. The musicians of BMOP are equally at home in Symphony Hall, Weill Recital Hall at Carnegie Hall, and in Cambridge’s Club Oberon and Boston’s Club Café, where they pursued a popular, composer-led Club Concert series from 2003 to 2012.

BMOP/sound, BMOP’s independent record label, was created in 2008 to provide a platform for BMOP’s extensive archive of music, as well as to provide widespread, top-quality, permanent access to both classics of the 20th century and the music of today’s most innovative composers. BMOP/sound has garnered praise from the national and international press; it is the recipient of eight Grammy Award nominations and its releases have appeared on the year-end “Best of” lists of The New York Times, The Boston Globe, National Public Radio, Time Out New York, American Record Guide, Downbeat Magazine, WBUR, NewMusicBox, and others. In 2020, BMOP/sound won the Grammy for Best Opera Recording for Tobias Picker’s Fantastic Mr. Fox.

BMOP expands the horizon of a typical “night at the symphony.” Admired, praised, and sought after by artists, presenters, critics, and audiophiles, BMOP and BMOP/sound are uniquely positioned to redefine the new music concert and recording experience.

Boston Modern Orchestra Project
376 Washington Street, Malden, MA 02148
781.324.0396 | bmop@bmop.org | www.bmop.org
ANTHONY DAVIS  X: The Life and Times of Malcolm X
2022 — NEW ENGLAND PREMIERE
The Pulitzer Prize-winning composer’s revised version of his seminal opera, performed at Dorchester’s Strand Theatre

NKEIRU OKOYE  Harriet Tubman: When I Crossed That Line to Freedom
2023 — NE PREMIERE / FULL ORCHESTRA COMMISSION
The Guggenheim Fellow’s first opera, about a woman who, in Okoye’s words, “did great things and survived”

WILLIAM GRANT STILL  Troubled Island
2024 — NEW ENGLAND PREMIERE
75th anniversary performances of the premiere of Still’s grandest opera, in partnership with New York City Opera

ULYSSES KAY  Frederick Douglass
2025 — NEW ENGLAND PREMIERE
The operatic gem considered by the composer to be his magnum opus, not performed in full since its 1991 premiere

JONATHAN BAILEY HOLLAND  The Bridge
2026 — WORLD PREMIERE / BMOP COMMISSION
A new opera about Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.’s years in Boston and his rise to national prominence